UK ENIC presents at Poland TNE conference

UK ENIC presented at the British Council UK-Poland Transnational Education Conference at the University of Warsaw, earlier this month.

The event aimed to enhance TNE developments and higher education partnerships between institutions in Poland and the UK.

It was based on key findings of research conducted by the British Council on higher education co-operation between the two countries.

Valentyna Krasnoshchok, International Education Analyst, hosted a session on 'Bridging British and Polish Education Systems', on behalf of UK ENIC.

One country, two Bachelor degrees

UK ENIC’s Research, Data and Insights team have expert knowledge that helps ensure the information in our database of over 4,000 international qualifications remains up-to-date for members.

It covers secondary to postgraduate levels from 210 countries and territories including Australia – which is the focus of this piece from our Research Manager, Emma Kirby.

Like many countries, Australia has retained a distinction between a ‘standard’ Bachelor degree on the one hand and an Honours degree on the other.

Both are categorised as ‘undergraduate’, and both may grant access to postgraduate study. So, what distinguishes them?

First and foremost, the Bachelor is aligned to level 7 on the Australian Qualification Framework (AQF), while Honours is pitched at level 8. The AQF explains that:

“The defining difference between the Bachelor Honours Degree and the Bachelor Degree is the development of advanced knowledge and the requirement for research in the former.”
