February 2012

Welcome to the February 2012 edition of the NARIC News. The response to last month's edition was very positive, but please continue to let us know what you think through the feedback link below.

New areas of growth?

Latest figures from UK NARIC (2011 vs. 2010) highlight that there has been a reduction in the usage of service related to Southern Asia, while there has been an increase for Africa and the Middle East.

Using 2010 and 2011 data from 3 sources - UK NARIC online database page views, enquiries from members and individual assessments – a noticeable increase in interest has emerged for countries in Africa and the Middle East. Conversely, there has been a drop in the proportion associated with countries in Southern Asia. (more...)

Training Programme

The 2012 training schedule is available online. Several sessions in March in London are already full, so please don't delay in sending your booking forms to us... View full schedule.

UK NARIC blog

We are receiving a lot of comments about our blogs. Come and have a look at what we are saying.

Busy, busy, busy

We've recently had our busiest ever day in terms of log-ons to our databases! On 31st January we had 1475 individual users log-on. We also saw a 2.25% growth in usage last year.
